"How long would that take? Sensory compensation and adaptation"

Our group tackles the questions of the sensory compensation and adaptations that occur when the brain faces environmental changes or lesions. We are in particular interested in the influence of gravity in the way multiple sources of information are combined, and in the sensory compensation that ensure the homeostasis of the sense of balance and orientation.